2. Types of Information Collected and Uses of Collected Information

We collect three types of information from and about Users: Personally Identifiable Information, Sensitive Information, and Non-Personally Identifiable Information.

2.1 Personally Identifiable Information & Sensitive Information.

We do not automatically collect any Personally Identifiable Information or Sensitive Information without your consent. When you create an account to obtain an ID.me Account and use the ID.me Service, you will be asked to provide certain Personally Identifiable Information and Sensitive Information so that we can verify your identity and attributes of your identity including, but not limited to, group affiliations (e.g., Military, First Responder, Student, Veteran, etc.), memberships, social media accounts, educational degrees, and professional certifications.

“Personally Identifiable Information” is information that identifies a specific individual, including, without limitation, first and last name, mailing address, e-mail address (including, without limitation, .mil e-mail address), telephone number, social security number, date of birth and photographic images. We collect this information through a variety of means,

The decision to share specific items of your Personally Identifiable Information and/or Sensitive Information with the ID.me Service (and, where applicable, with Third-Party Websites in connection with your participation in the ID.me Cash Back Program and with certain aspects of the ID.me Service (including certain deals, cash back rewards, offers or opportunities offered by Third-Party Websites which are conditioned upon certain eligibility requirements)) is yours and yours alone. You can elect to provide all or only some of the information requested by the Website during the registration process and at any time you may decide to remove some of the information that you previously provided. However, if you decline to provide any of the above information, you may not be able to register for an ID.me Account or to access certain benefits of the ID.me Service (including certain deals, cash back rewards, offers or opportunities offered by Third-Party Websites which are conditioned upon certain eligibility requirements). Furthermore, we reserve the right to audit your eligibility (e.g., group affiliations such as active duty military or student status); to audit user accounts for fraud by, for example, verifying that purchases, upgrades, or benefits (both tangible and intangible) are delivered to registered user addresses or used by the registered user and not otherwise resold, transferred, or distributed by Members for their personal, financial gain; and to prevent duplicate ID.me Accounts from being created with the same information.

2.2 Non-Personally Identifiable Information.

Non-Personally Identifiable Information is information that does not identify a specific User. This type of information may include things like the Uniform Resource Locator ("URL") of the website you visited before coming to the Website, the URL of the website you visit after leaving the Website, the type of browser you are using, your Internet Protocol ("IP") address, occupation, language, unique device identifier, approximately geographic location, and time zone. We, and/or our authorized Third-Party service providers and advertisers, may automatically collect this information when you visit our Website through the use of electronic tools like Cookies and Web beacons or Pixel tags or location based capabilities on your mobile device, including those described in Items 4 and 8 of this Privacy Policy. We may also share this information with our authorized Third-Party service providers and advertisers to measure the overall effectiveness of our online advertising, content, and programming. In certain limited instances, we may combine certain Non-Personally Identifiable Information with other identifiers in order to confirm your identity as part of the ID.me verification process. For example, we may combine an approximate geographic location obtained from a User's mobile device and match it with address information the User voluntarily submitted to the Website in order to confirm the User's identity and prevent fraudulent conduct. Notwithstanding, this information would still be considered Non-Personally Identifiable
