Welcome to Chase Secure BankingSM!

With your new checking account you're now able to:

- Use your debit card for ride-sharing services, car rentals and more
- Request money orders or cashier's checks without paying a fee
- Pay bills using your account and routing numbers
- Add other account owners

Also, just as with your previous account, you won't be charged Overdraft Fees¹.

You should have received your new Chase debit card in the mail. If you haven't activated it yet, please do so now. As a reminder, your card number and PIN will remain the same, but the expiration date and CVV code have changed, so you'll need to update merchants that have your card information.

For a complete list of your new account terms and to get to know your new account better, go to chase.com/SecureBanking.

Please call the number on this statement if you have any questions.

¹We will decline or return transactions when you do not have enough money in your account to cover the charge. However, you could still end up with a negative balance if, for example, a transaction is approved for one amount, but then the actual charge is more than what you have in your account (like when you add a tip at a restaurant after the transaction for the meal was already approved). Even if you have a negative balance, we will not charge you an overdraft fee.
